FIRE IN A MUSEUM

AND A PANIC AMONG THE AUDI-

BUT A BRAVE POLICEMAN CHECKS IT.

Chicago Visited by Another Large Confisgration—Haymarket Theater Among the Buildings Burned—A Heavy Loss.

CHICAGO, April 12 .- Chicago this evening suffered one of the most destructive confia-grations that has occured here since the big fire of 1871. The loss is fully $1,000,000. The fire started in a stable, the property of the well-known furniture manufacturer, John M. Smith, and was located in the rear of his big house-furnishing establishment on West Mad-ison street, near Halstead. The flames speedily communicated to the furniture establishment, and a moment later to Kohi & Middle-

In a marvelously short time both structures had turned into a mass of flames, which darted across the street and lodged in the upper stories of buildings on the north side of Madison street. A moment later firemen along the thoroughfare found themselves working between two towering walls of fire.

For a time it looked as though the conflagration would get beyond control, and that, as in 1871, it would sweep towrads the lake, directly across the business district of the city. As it to add to the consternation, the wind had sud-denly arisen, and was blowing a stiff gale from

Firemen, obeying orders, stood steadily in the street where the flames scorched them from either side and after a fierce battle at length brought the fire, in a measure, under

The immense blaze, however, continued to rage with intense fury in the buildings already partly destroyed. The museum was nothing but a heap of ruins and the walls of the Smith building were falling one another. Fortunately they all into the ruins and no person was injured. Across the street, also, a wall soon succumbed. Here the upper story of a three-story building, northwest corner of Madison and Union streets, caught fire. Quickly the flames lodged aroung the windows of the fifth story of the Haymarket theater building and were soon stretching along under the mansard roof. Just west of the Haymarket building was a five-story building occupied by the People's Clothing Company. Here also, the windows were on fire. Despite all efforts, the ket block shared the fate of those across the street, and were wiped out completely. In the Haymarket theater the fire was confined to the upper story, but the whole building was filled with smoke and water. West of Haymarket the damage was comparatively small.

A PANIC IN THE MUSEUM. The first intimation the inmates of Kohl & Middleton's museum had of the close proximwindow on his floor, through which a volume window on his noor, through which a volume of smoke poured, filling the entire floor. A wild panic followed among the 400 persons in the building, most of whom, however, were on the first floor, watching a variety performance.

The emergency brought out a hero in the person of Policeman Patrick Sheeny. Forcing his way through the frightened people who were madly retarding each other in the jam at the the exit, he stationed himself at the head of the stairs and, drawing his revolver, declared his intention to kill the first person who refused to obey his orders.

JUMPED FROM A WINDOW. By coolness and determination he succeeded in quieting the panic, and every one reached the street in safety, with the exception of C. H. Messenger, a young man, who, before Officer Sheeny reached the stair landing, made a rush for the front of the building, and, throwing open a window, jumped out into the street, He fell with awful force on the stone pave-Several persons following him stopped, ho stricken, long enough to be corralled by Sheeny and his revolver. One old lady was in this crowd fell when near the bottom

THE MONKEYS LIBERATED. As soon as Officer Sheeny had caused an abatement of the panic among the people, he went up to the third floor, where some scores of monkeys were caged. The poor brutes were chattering and screaming with terror at the flames on all sides. Sheeny hurriedly seized the iron bars and forcing them apart opened an aperture wide enough to admit of the escape of the little animals, whose fright was almost human. The creatures, when liberated, wildly scampered about the room for a moment, and then, with innate perverseness and to the intense chagrin of Sheeny, who wa risking his life every moment, rushed up stairs in a herd and were burned to death by the sale. The policeman was forced to grope his way down through the blinding smoke, and reached the street dazed, and nearly uncon

The excitement among the freaks, who were on exhibition on the third floor, was pitiful.

They were practically unable to help themselves, owing to the abnormal development or lack of development, and could only with difficulty be restrained from ithrowing themselves from the windows.

THE LOSS ES. The loss, aggregating over $750,000, is distributed as follows: John M. Smith, furni ture, stock and building, $500,000; Kohl & Middleton, curiosities, fixture and building, $85,000; Neely Bros., boots and shoes, $20,000; Aldebert Kaempfer, jeweler, $45,000; Alfred Peats, wall paper, $60,000; Baer Bros., hats, $10,000; M. Irrman, cigars and takes. and tobacco. $25,000; Hannan & Hogg, Hqu $20,000; Royal Tailoring Company, $6,000 Haymarket theater, $47,000; board of education property, in rear of Smith block, $50,000 miscellaneous loss, $5,000,

The insurance will be very light, John M Smith carrying only about $125,000, while Kohl & Middleton and M. Irrman carried no insurance whatever, having allowed their policies to expire without renewal, as they had intended moving within a fortnight.

The fire in the Haymarket theater was dis-covered just twenty minutes before the close of the last act of Barry and Fay's performance, but the audience was gotten out quietly and the scenery and effects removed.

INCIDENTS OF THE FIRE. While the fire was at its worst the side wall corner of Union street and Meridian court, col-lapsed and precipitated forty persons into the excavation beneath. Mrs. Bessie Higgins was bly fatally injured by the fall. Bernard brobably fataily injured by the last.

Stoth had a leg broken.

When the fire broke out, Dr. J. Z. Bergerson was attending a woman patient in a flat in one of the buildings subsequently burned.

When the fire got too close, Dr. Bergerson seized the suffering woman, and wrapping her in blankets, descended three flights of stairs with his burden and carried her to a refuge

In less than fifteen minutes a fine girl baby was born amid the crash of falling walls and the hoarse shouts of firemen. Both mother and child are doing well.

SPRECKLES DENIES THE STORY That His Refinery Will Restrict the Output of Sugar.

PHILADELPHIA, April 12.—With emphasis that did not permit of any misunderstanding, C. A. Spreckies, of the big sugar refinery, last night denied the latest story relative to the restriction of the output of sugar from Spreck-les's Philadelphia establishment in return for the undisputed possession of the Pacific coas market. He said:

"The report is absolutely without foundation.
I do not know why it is so frequently revived. In the face of all we can say, the newspapers keep on bringing it up again and again Spreckles's refinery will continue to be operated at its fullest capacity, some 7,000 barrels of sugar per day. No proposition has come to us, either directly or indirectly, looking to a restric tion of the output. I would like you to say unreservedly, that no such project would receive the slightest attention from us. There is posi-tively no reason for circulating such reports, and I do wish you would deny them broadly and explicitly. When we established our business here we announced our purpose to stay here, and that is just what we propose

HE BEAT A BOY And a Mob Came Near Hanging Him to

NEW YORK, April 12 .- This city came near being the scene of a lynching this afternoon, and it was only the timely arrival of an officer that saved young Joseph Davis from being strung up to a lamp post at Tenth avenue and Forty-ninth street. A clothes line had already been provided, and a mob was hustling Davis along to his doom when he was rescued. The excitement was caused by Davis's cruel treatment of a sixteen-year old boy, Hugh Mooney. The boy's refusal to buy beer for a young man caused the latter to knock the boy down and kick him until he was almost insensible, and it was this that enraged the crowd that set upon him. The boy was seriously injured, and Davis was locked up.

GENERAL BOOTH IN BALTIMORE.

He Describes His Visit to the Hovels of BALTIMORE, April 12.—Marshall Ballington Booth, of the Salvation Army, is in town. He had a great audience at his first lecture. When in New York recently I determined that I would see the great metropolis in its worst phase by night. So, one night, accompanied by a friend, I left the Salvation Army barracks there, clad so like a ruffian that even my closest friends failed at first to recognize me. I can assure you that unless there is a great change in New York soon it will be as bad as ever darkest England was. As we strolled through the streets I said half aloud, William Booth, if you were here you could see sights such as you never saw in England.

HIS SKULL WAS CRUSHED

A BRUTAL MURDER IN CHARLOTTE.

An Italian Killed by a Negro and Then Robbed—Arrest and Identification of the Murderer—Threats of Lynching. CHARLOTTE, N. C., April 12 .- [Special.]-

Charlotte is considerably wrought up today over a dastardly murder, committed last night about 11:30 o'clock, in an Italian fruit store on West Trade street, and near the Richmon and Danville depot.

John B. Mocca, an Italian, and the owner of the store, while in the act of drawing a glass of cider for a negro, was struck on the back of the head with a freight car coupling pin and his skull was crushed, and he was robbed of $230. So quietly was the act committed and so stunning the blow that the murder was not discovered by the police until twenty minutes reafter, when Sergeant Riggler heard the groans of the dying man from the street and went in and found him prostrated. He was carried to his bed up stairs, and this mornin at 10 o'clock he expired. He never was con scious from the time he received the fatal ARREST OF THE MURDERER

The assassin's name is Henry Branham, negro gambler, well know in the police courts of Charleston, Savannah and Atlanta. This negro had been hanging around this fruit store all day, and a few minutes before he committed the murder Mocca's son saw him in the store, and identified him this morning. On his person was found a handkerchief, in which the pin was wrapped before the murder. The handkerchief was soiled with rust and a plain imprint of the pin.

Last night he sold the suit of clothes that he wore at the store to a colored porter at the Buford hotel, and this morning when captured he had on a $7 silk hat, a fine black cutaway serge and a handsome pair of patent leather shoes. These clothes were in pawn, and last night he redeemed them with the money, and only $5 was found upon his

SUSPECTED OT OTHER CRIMES. The negro is suspected of the burglary at the Buford house two weeks ago tonight, when some one entered the room of W. J. Johnson and took $209 and his watch and clothing

John B. Mocca, the murdered man, was an Italian, having recently come to America from Italy, and directly to Charlotte from Gaffney about two months ago, since which time he has been keeping a small fruit stand on West Trade street. He could scarcely speak English, but was a quiet, well-behaved citizen, and his foul taking off has greatly incensed the people of Charlotte, and especially the twenty-five Italian-born citizens of the city. Knots of citizens were gathered on the streets all day discussing the propriety of lynching the murderer tonight.

THE JAIL GUARDED. The plan was to move on the jail while the people were at church, but the plan leaked out, and the sheriff now has the jail guarded with forty of the Hornet Nest's Riffemen. There will be no lynching tonight, and the in-tense feeling will cool down before another twenty-four hours. Sheriff Smith assured the crowd this afternoon that they would have to walk over his "dead body" before they could lynch this negro. The sheriff is plucky and is determined to prevent lynching by a mob,

TWO CHILDREN BURNED TO DEATH Heroic Efforts of a Girl to Save an Infant.

GREENVILLE, S. C., April 12.-[Special.]-On | Wednesday last Isaac Pier, colored, his wife and a daughter eleven years of age, were at work in a field near his house. They had left a small boy and an infant in the house The boy stepped out for some cause, and the infant fell into the fire. The first intimation the parents and older child had of the occurrence was a terrible scream from the little one The parents and the little girl all started to see what was wrong, but the girl ran ahead of

When she reached the house she discovered the infant with its clothing in a blaze. With out a moment's hesitation she ran forward and seized it, wrapped her clothes around it and endeavored to extinguish the blaze, but unfor-tunately her own clothing (caught, and when the parents arrived they were horrified to see both children with their clothing on fire and creaming pitifully. The girl gave the child to her mother and ran out doors with her clothing still blazing. Her father caught her and extinguished the fire as soon as possible, burning his hands terribly in his efforts to do so.

The child was so horribly burned that it lived only a few hours. The girl, who so heroically risked her life for the child, lingered in terrible agony until Thursday, when she died also. Pier and his wife live about six

WHY IT WAS INTRODUCED IN THE TRIAL

Politz Was at the Meeting that Sealed Hennessy's Fate, But Says He Was Not at the Assassination.

NEW ORLEANS, April 12 .- The grand jury is expected to report during the coming week, and among other things it is said that the confession of Politz will be used in the report. Although Politz protested his own innocence he acknowledged that he had joined the Mafia under the impression that it was a benevolent society. He was present at the meeting when Hennessy's death was decided upon, and was ordered to carry a gun in a sack to Monasterio's shanty, but refused. He did not know of the killing until the Sunday following, but afterwards learned the details from Monasterio, and they were substantially the same as claimed by the state upon the trial implicating Shaffedi, Marchesi, Bagnetto and Monasterio as Hennessy's slayers.

The state did not use the confession, because it had direct proof of Politz's presence at the killing, which his story denied. Politz is said to have had a brother, who closely resemble him, who has not been heard of since the killing, and is presumably in Italy. Had he been found, the identification might have been transferred to him, and Politz's confession would have formed an important link in the chain of evidence.

PARIS, April 12.—M. Herbette, French am-bassador to Germany, has sent to M. Ribot, French minister of foreign affairs, a dispatch full of misgivings as to the nature of the ambassador's relations with the Berlin office. M. Herbette says that Von Caprivi treats him with formal politeness, while the German em-peror, who was formerly invariably affable in manner, now speaks curtly and has shown positive! ill-humor toward Frenchmen, whom Herbette has introduced at receptions The news causes increased anxiety in government circles here. Hitherto Herbette's own reports, as well as other official in-formation from Berlin, have shown that Herbette was persona grata with Emperor William, and that the ambassador was on the most amicable personal terms with the chiefs of the Berlin foreign office. If the French government ascertains that the kaiser's altered attitude toward Herbette arises from dissatisfaction over the treat received by Empress Frederick in Paris, his official circles the kaiser exonerated M. Herbette from all blame in the matter, while M. Ribot considered the conduct of the ambassa dor in relation to the Paris incident to have

SOUR ON HARRISON.

The Savannah Negroes Have Very Little Love for the President. SAVANNAH, Ga., April 12.-[Special.]-The negroes here, as already stated in THE CON-STITUTION, are sour on President Harrison.
With few exceptions they have no use for him.
Even the officeholders, who draw their pay by his grace, are dissatisfied and continually by his grace, are dissatished and continually complain that all the plums went to the white so-called republicans, while they received nothing but the scraps. The office-holders will try to go to the next convention as delegates, but Harrison cannot rely on them. Their support is founded on a purely mercenary basis. In conversation they make no secret of the fact that if Harrison discloses any great weakness at the convention they mercenary basis. In conversation they make no secret of the fact that if Harrison discloses any great weakness at the convention they will bolt him and work for whoever they think will win. They have no personal love for the man, and, with the exception, perhaps, of a few of the white officials, precious little gratitude to keep them in the Harrison ranks. Conversation with negroes of all grades discloses the fact that they do not care at all whether Harrison is renominated, and in almost nine cases out of ten would prefer Blaine or Robert Lincoln. Lincoln's name is still the one to juggle with before them. It

The Sharp Branch of a Dead Chestnut Tree Pierced His Leg Through. Toccoa, Ga., April 12.—[Special.]—A piece of the dead branch of a chestnut tree was taken from the leg of J. C. Ryals recently. The young man was playing with some boys when he started on a run, the other boys after him. Down the hill they ran pell mell in the darkness, when young Ryals plunged squarely his thigh on the inner side, passing through the flesh diagonally upward and across in the direction of the outside of the hip. The stick he pulled out was three and one-half inches long and about three-quarters of an inch thick. Another piece was left in, which was taken out near the hip joint, a few days ago. This piece was also about three and one-half inches long and one-half an inch

This little family settled down on a farm four miles from where the present city of Cor-dele stands, and were regarded by their neighbors as harmless, inoffen-sive and respectable people. Thus they con-tinued to live until the 16th day of October, 1890, when the entire county was shocked with the awful intelligence that John Morris, the son, had brutally and deliberately taken the life of his father.

THE STORY OF THE CRIME. The details of the occurrence were as fol-

They each were enraged and hot words followed, but

Finally, about 10 o'clock the old man and the son were engaged in stacking some fodder around a pole in the horse lot, when the quarrel was renewed, and the son, John, caught up a grubbing-hoe handle lying conveniently by, and dealt the mortal blows, crushing his parent's head into a shapeless mass, and giving round after wound, either of which was mor

An angry crowd soon gathered, and it could be plainly seen that the night would not pass before the slayer would be dangling between earth and heaven by the sentence of "Judge Lynch." Just at this moment the prisoner's only friend, Mr. Jack Taylor, appeared upon the scene, and employed Mr. D. A. Remer Crum, of the law firm of Busbee & Crum, to represent the unfortunate man. He was immediately taken before a convenient justice of the peace, T. A. TRIED AND CONVICTED.

There he remained until the last term of the superior court, when he was indicted for the crime of murder, and put upon trial for his life. His attorneys announced ready without any delay, and on Wednesday morning the trial of this, the most important criminal case ever held in this county, was commenced. The horrible details of the tragedy were recounted in the courtroom, and the utmost interest was manifested by the public. After a long and tedious investigation, in which every inch of ground was contested by the able counsel for the defense, the arguments, late in the day, were begun. Many of the ladies of the town were in the courtroom to give comfort and a consoling glance to the unfortunate man and his young wife and siswere in the courtroom to give comfotr and a consoling glance to the unfortunate man and his young wife and sisters. The argument for the defense was opened by Hon. George W. Busbee, who carefully and plainly presented the case for the defendant in a speech of an hour and a half.

Then came the argument of Colonel D. A. R. Crum who, for two hours and a quarter held the jurors and the spectators spellbound by his matchless eloquence and feeling speech for the prisoner. At times the jurors would be moved to tears and the crowd would sway to and fro under the feeling words of this young orator. He presented every point of advantage for the prisoner, and although this was an effort of a very young lawyer, and his first argument in a capital case, it was pronounced by all who heard it to be the grandest and most telling effort ever made in such a case.

The state's case was then ably and earnestly presented by Hon. Tom Eason, solicitor general of this circuit, who made an earnest and able effort for the state. He reminded the jurors of their duty to society and the state to render a verdict of guilty in the case.

So well pleased with the verdict were the prisoner and his attorney that not even a motion was made for a new trial—they fearing that upon a second trial he might be hung.

Thus ended the trial of this parricide. He was in a few days taken away from a loving young wife, mother and sisters to serve this long sentence out in the coal mines of Georgia, and justice and law were avenged and vindicated.

when Confronted by a Man He Had Swindled a Year Ago.

Arlington, Ga., April 12.—[Special.]—A year ago, when the circus or show, which is managed by Teets Brothers, was in this locality, a man by the name of John Renfroeran a side business known as the "Stick and ring department." At that time Mr. G. L. Collins made the acquaintance of Renfroe. Wanting some cotton ties, he gave Renfroe an order and the money with which to buy the ties of James Bros., of Blakely. Renfroe bought the ties and had them sent to Mr. Collins, who supposed everything was regular until he was presented with a bill of the goods for payment, when he realized what had happened. Renfroe sent the ties but kept the money as lost until Wednesday last, when Renfroe turned up here with this same show.

Collins knew his man when he saw him, and demanded the return of the money. Renfroe dallied and put Collins off till Thursday, but before the east-bound train was due, and before Mr. Collins could see him, Renfroe took the railroad towards Albany.

Mr. Collins saw through his game, and taking Mr. C. G. Bostwick in his buggy, preceded the train to Commissary Hill. Waving the train down at that point, they found their man aboard. Making him disgorge, they permitted him to go his way.

Queer Names.
WAYNESBORO, Ga., April 12.—[Special.]— There is a negro woman living out in the country near this place who has queer ideas as to the naming of children. Instead of bestowing upon them the biblical names so popular with the Africo-American citizen, she has developed a nomenclature from their physical peculiarities. For instance, one has very thick lips, and his name is Lips; another has very big feet, and he is called Foots; another is blessed with a pair of very bowed legs, and he is known as Crooks; and so on. She gives as a reason that as there are so many of them, she could not remember the ordinary names, but as they are, she has only to look at them and she knows what to call them.

He and his stepfather could not get along together, so Jack went off. His mother came after him and he returned home with her upon his stepfather's promise to treat him right. Jack was put to plowing a mule. The mule wouldn't work and Jack struck him. His stepfather became enraged and knocked Jack on the back of the head with a boot. "I have the scar yet," said Jack. "When I left this time I went to Atianta, and was on my way from scar yet." said Jack. I was put on the Rome train on the charge that I had turned a switch."

Jack said he wanted to go back home. So the lawyers, spectators and jurors, who had acquitted him, gave him enough money to buy something to eat and a ticket to Decatur, Ala. RE,

THE PLAGUES OF THE CITIES.

And Takes for His Text the Twentieth Vers of the Seventh Chapter of Exedus and Preaches an Eloquent Sermon. NEW YORK, April 12 .- [Special.]-Dr. Talmage, in continuance of the course of sermons on "The Ten Plagues of the Cities," today preached to large audiences on "The Plague of Crime" He took for his text Exodus VII., 20: "All the waters that were in the river were sturned to blood." Among all the Egyptian plagues, none could have been worse than this. The Nile is the wealth of Egypt. Its fish the food. Its waters the irrigation of garden and fields. Its ondition decides the prosperity or doom of the empire. What happens to the Nile hap-pens to all Egypt. And now in the text that great river is incarnadined. It is a red gash cross an empire. In poetic license we speak of wars which turn the rivers into blood. But my text is not a poetic license. It was a fact, a great crimson appalling condition, described. The Nile rolling deep of blood. Can you imagine a more awful plague? The modern plague which nearest corre sponds with that is the plague of crime in all our cities. It halts not for bloodshed. It shrinks from no carnage. It bruises, and cuts, and strikes down, and destroys. It revels in the blood of body and soul, this plague of crime rampant for ages, and never bolder or more rampant than now.

The annual police reports of these cities as I examine them are to me more suggestive than "Dante's Inferno," and all Christian people as well as reformers need to waken to a present and tremendous duty. If you want this "Plague of Crime" to stop, there are several kinds of persons you need to consider. First, the public criminals. You ought not to be sur prised that these people make up a large portion in many communities. The vast majority of the criminals who take ship from Europe come into our own port. In 1869, of the 49,000 people who were incarcerated in the prisons of the country, 32,000 were of foreign birth. Many of them were the very desperadoes of society oozing into the slums of our cities, waiting for an opportunity to riot and steal and debauch, joining the large gang of American thugs and cut-throats. There are in this cluster of cities—New York, Jersey City and Brooklyn—4,000 people whose entire business in life is to commit crime. That is as much their business as jurisprudence or medicine or merchandise is your business. To it they bring all their energies of body, mind and soul, and they look upon the intervals which they spend in prison as so much unfortunate loss of time, just as you look upon an unfortunate attack of influenza or rheumatism which fastens you in the house for a few days. It is their lifetime busiprised that these people make up a large poryou look upon an unfortunate attack of infu-enza or rheumatism which fastens you in the house for a few days. It is their lifetime busi-ness to pick pockets, and blow up safes, and snoplift, and ply the panel game, and they have as much pride of skill in their business shopilit, and ply the panel game, and they have as much pride of skill in their business as you have in yours when you upset the argument of an opposing counsel, or cure a gunshot fracture which other surgeons have given up or forsee a turn in the market as you buy goods just before they go up 20 per cent. It is their business to commit crime and I do not suppose that once in a year the thought of the immorality strikes them. Added to these professional criminals, American and foreign, there are a large class of men who are more or less industrious in crime. In one year the police in this cluster of cities arrested 10,000 people for theft, and 10,000 for assault and battery, and 50,000 for intoxication. Drunkenness is responsible for much efthe theft, since it confuses a man's ideas of property, and he gets his hands on things that do not belong to him. Rum is responsible for much of the assault and battery, inspiring men to sudden bravery, which they must demonstrate, though it be on the face of the next gentleman.

strate, though it be on the face of the next gentleman.

Ten million dollars worth of property stolen in this cluster of cities in one year! You cannot, as good citizens, be independent of that fact. It will touch your pocket, since I have to give you the fact that these three cities pay about $8,000,000 worth of taxes a year to arraign, try, and support the criminal population. You help to pay the board of every criminal, from the sneak thief that snatches a spool of cotton up to some man who swamps a bank. More than that, it touches your heart in the moral depression of the community. You might as well think to stand in a closely confined room where there are fifty people and yet not breathe the vitiated air, as to stand in a community where there is such a great multitude of the deprayed without somewhat being contaminated. What is the fire that burns your store down compared with the conflagration store down compared with the conflagration which consumes your morals? What is the theft of the gold and sliver from your money safe compared with the theft of your children's sixteel.

We are all ready to arraign criminals. shout at the top of our voice, "Stop thief!" and when the police get on the track we come and when the police get on the track we come out, hattess and in our slippers, and assist in the arrest. We come around the bawling ruffian and hustle him off to justice, and when he gets in prison, what do we do for him? With great gusto we put on the handcuffs and With great gusto we put on the handcurs and the hoppless but what preparations are we making for the day when the handcuffs and the hopples come off? Society seems to say to these criminals, privillain, go in there and rot, when it ought to say, "You are an offender against the law, but we mean to give you an opportunity to repent; we mean to help you. Here are Bibles and tracts and Christian in-

Here are Bibles and tracts and Christian influences. Christ died for you. Look, and live."

Vast improvements have been made by introducing industries into the prisons; but we want something more than hammers and shoe lasts to reclaim these people. Aye, we want more than sermons on the Sabbath day. Society must impress these men with the fact that it does not enjoy their suffering, and that it is attempting to reform and elevate them. The majority of criminals suppose that society has a grudge against them, and they in turn have a grudge against society.

They are harder in heart and more infuriate when they come out of jail than when they have a grudge against society.

They are harder in heart and more infuriate when they come out of jail than when they went in. Many of the people when they go to prison go again and again and again. Some years ago of 1,500 prisoners, who during the year, had been in Sing Sing, 400 had been there before. In a house of correction in the country, where during a certain reach of time, there had been 5,000 people, more than 3,000 had been there before. So, in one case the prison, and in the other case the house of correction, left them just as bad as they were before. The secretary of one of the benevolent societies of New York says a lad fifeen years of age who had spent three years of his life in prison, and he said to the lad, "What have they done for you to make you better?" societies of New York says a lad fifeen years of age who had spent three years of his life in prison, and he said to the lad, "What have they done for you to make you better?" "Well," replied the lad, "the first time I was brought up before the judge he said, 'You ought to be ashamed of yourself.' And then I committed a crime again, and I was brought up before the same judge, and he said, 'You rascal!' And after a while I committed some other crime, and I was brought up before the same judge, and he said, 'You ought to be hanged.'" That is all they had done for him in the way of reformation and salvation. "Oh," you say, "these people are incorrigible." I suppose there are hundreds of persons this day lying in the prison bunks who would leap up at the prospect of reformation, if society would only allow them a way into decency and respectability. "Oh," you say, "I have no patience with these rogues." I sak you in reply, how much better would you have been under the same circumstances? Suppose your mother had been a blasphemer and your father a sot, and you had started life with a body stuffed with evil proclivities, and you had spent; much of your time in a cellar amid obscenities and cursing, and if at ten years of age you had been compelled to go out and steal, battered and banged at night if you came in without any spoils, and suppose your early manhood and womanhood had been covered with rags and filth, and decent society had turned its back upon you, and left you to consort with vagabonds and wharf-rate—how much better would you have been? I have no sympathy with that executive elemency which would let crime run loose, or which would sit in the rallery of a courtroom weeping because some hard-hearted wretch is brought to justice; but I do say that the afety and life of the community demand more potential influences in behalf of public offenders.

In some of the city prisons the air is like that of the Black Hole of Calcutts. I have visited prisons where as the air

In some of the city prisons the air is like that of the Black Hole of Calcutts. I have visited prisons where, as the air swept through the wicket, it almost knocked me down. No sunlight. Young men who had committed their first crime crowded in among old offenders. I saw in one prison a woman, with a child almost blind, who had been arrested for the crime of poverty, who was waiting until the slow law could take her to the almshouse, where she rightfully belonged; but she was thrust in there with her child amid the most abandoned wretches of the town. Many of the offenders in that prison sleeping on the floor, with nothing but a vermin-covered blanket over them. Those people crowded and wan and wasted and half suffocated and infuriated. I said to the men, "How do you stand it here?" "God knows," said one man, "we have to stand it." Oh, they will pay you when they get out. Where they burned down one house they will burn three. They are this minute plotting worse burglaries. Some of the city jails are the best places I know of to manufacture foot-pads, vagabonds and cut-throats. Yale college is not so well calculated to make scholars, nor Harvard so well calculated to make scholars, nor Harvard so well calculated to make scholars of the city is an and sickening surroundings of such places there is nothing but disease for the body, idiocy for the mind, and death for the soul. Stifled air and darkness and vermin never turned a thief into an honest man.

We want men like John Howard and Sir William. Blackstone, and women like Elizabeth Fry, to do for the prisons of the United States what those people did in other days for what I sanc T. Hopper and Dr. Wines and Mr. Harris and scores of others have done in the way of prison reform; but we want something more radical before will come the blessing of Him who said: "I was in prison, and ye came unto me."

Again: in your efforts to arrest the plague of

Him who said: "I was in prison, and ye came unto me."

Again: in your efforts to arrest the plague of crime you need to consider untrustworthy officials. "Woe unto thee, O land, when thy king is a child, and thy princes drink in the morning." It is a great calamity to a city when bad men get into public authority. Why was it that in New York there was such unparalleled crime between 1866 and 1871? It was because the judges of police in that city, at that time, for the most part, were as corruptas the vagabonds that came before them for trial. Those were the days of high carnival for election frauds, assassination and forgery. We had all kinds of rings. There was one man during those years that got $128,000 in one year for serving the public. In a few years it was estimated that there were $50,000,000 of public treasure squandered. In those times the criminal had only to wink to the judge, or his lawyer would wink for him, and the question was decided for the defendant. Of the 8,000 people arrested in that city in one year, only 3,000 were punished. These little matters were "fixed down." You know as well as I do that one villain who escapes only opens the door for other criminalities. When the two pickpockets snatched the diamond pin from the Brooklyn gentleman in a Broadway stage, and the villains were arrested, and the trial was set down for the general sessions, and then the trial never came, and never anything more was heard of the case, the public officials were only bidding higher for more crime. It is no compliment to public authority when we have in all the cities of the country walking abroad, men and women notorious for criminality, unwhipped of justice. They are pointed out to you in the streets day by day. There you find what are called the "fences," the men who stand between the thief and the honest man, sheltering the thief and at a great price handing over the goods to the owner to whom they belong. There you will find those who are called the "skinners," the men who hover around Wall street, wit street, with great sleight of hand in bonds and stocks. There you find the funeral thieves, the people who go and sit down and mourn with families and pick their pockets. And there you find the "confidence men," who borrow money of you because they have a dead child in the house and want to bury it, when they never had a house or a family; or they want to go to England and get a large property there, and they want you to pay their way, and they will send the money back by the very next mail. There are the "harbor thieves," the "shopiliters," the "pickpockets," famous all over the cities. Hundreds of them with their faces in the "rogues' gallery," yet doing nothing for the last rive or ten years but defraud society and escape justice. When these people go unarrested and unpunished, it is putting a high premium upon vice, and saying to the young criminals of this country, "What a safe thing it is to be a great criminal." Let the law swoop upon them. Let it be known in this country that crime will have no quarter, that the detectives are after it, that the police club is being brandished, that the iron door of the prison is being opened, that the ioudge is ready to call on the case. Too great leniency to criminals is too great severity to society.

Again: In your effort to arrest this plague

Again: In your effort to arrest this plague of crime, you need to consider the idle population. Of course, I do not refer to people who are getting old, or to the sick, or to those who cannot get work; but I tell you to look out for those athletic men and women who will not work. When the French nobleman was asked why he kept hops whom he had so will not work. When the French nobleman was asked why he kept busy when he had so large a property, he said: "I keep on engraving so I may not Lang myself." I do not care who the man is, you cannot afford to be idie. It is from the idle classes that the criminal classes are made up. Character, like water, gets putrid if it stands still too long. Who can wonder that in this world, where there is so much to do, and all the hosts of earth and heaven and hell are plunging into inal classes are made up. Character, like water, gets putrid if it stands still too long. Who can wonder that in this world, where there is so much to do, and all the hosts of earth and heaven and hell are plunging into the conflict, and angels are flying, and God is at work, and the universe is a-quake with the marching and counter-marching, that God lets his indignation fall upon a man who chooses idleness? I have watched these donothings who spend their time stroking their beard, and rotouching their toilet, and criticising industrious people, and pass their days and nights in barrooms and clubhouses, lounging and smoking and chewing and card-playing. They are not only useless, but they are dangerous. How hard it is for them to while away the hours! Alas for them! If they do not know how to while away an hour, what will they do when they have all eternity on their hands? These men for awhile smoke the best cigars, and wear the best clothes, and move in the highest spheres; but I have noticed that very soon they come down to the prison, the almshouse, or stop at the gallows.

The police stations of this cluster of cities furnish annually between 200,000 and 300,000 lodgings. For the most part, these 200,000 and 300,000 lodgings are furnished to able-bodied men and women—people as able to work as you and I are. When they are received no longer at one police station, because they are "repeaters," they go to rome other station, and so they keep moving around. They get their food at house doors, stealing what they can lay their hands on in the front basement while the servant is spreading the bread in the back, basement. They will not work. Time and again, in the country districts, they have wanted hundreds and thousands of laborers. These men will not go. They do not want to work. I have tried them. I have set them to sawing wood in my cellar to see whether they wanted to work. I offered to pay them well for it. I have heard the saw going for about three minutes, and then I went down, and lo, the wood, but no sa like for that class of people, the scant bill of fare that Paul wrote out for the Thessalonian loafers: "If any work not, neither should he eat." By what law of God or man is ir right that you and I should toll day in and day out, until our hands are blistered and our arms ache and our brain gets numb, and then be called upon to support what, in the United States, are about 2,000,000 loafers? They are a very dangerous class. Let the public authorities keep their eyes on them.

Again: Among the uprooting classes I place the oppressed poor. Poverty, to a certain extent, is chastening; but after that, when it drives a man to the wall, and he hears his children cry in vain for bread, it sometimes makes him desperate. I think that there are thousands of men lacerated into vagabondism. There are men crushed under burdens for which they are not half paid. While there is no excuse for criminality, even in oppression, I state it as a simple fact that much of the sooundrelism of the community is consequent upon ill treatment. There are many men and women battored and bruised and stung until the hour of despair has come, and they stand with the ferocity of a wild beast which, pursued until it can run no longer, turns round, foaming and bleeding, to fight the hounds.

There is a vast underground New York and Brooklyn life that is appalling and shameful. It wallows and steams with putrefaction. You go down the stairs, which are wet and decayed with filth, and at the bottom you find the poor victims on the floor, cold, sick, three-fourths dead, slinking into a still darker corner under the gleam of the lantern of the police. There has not been a breath of fresh air in that room for five years, literally. The broken sewer empties its contents upon them, and they lie at night in the swimming filth. There they are, men, women, children; blacks, whites; Mary Magdalene without her repeutance, and Lazarus without his God. These are "the dives" into which the pickpockets and the thieves go, as well as a great many who would like a and the thieves go, as well as a great many who would like a different life, but cannot get it. These places are the sores of the city, which bleed perpetual corruption. They are the underlying volcano that threatens us with a Caraccas earthquake. It rolls, and roars, and surges, and heaves, and rocks, and blasphemes and dies. And there are only two outlets for it—the police court and the potter's field. In other words, they must either go to prison or to hell. Oh, you never saw it, you say. You never will see it until on the day when those staggering wretches shall come up in the light of the judgment throne, and while all hearts are being revealed, God will ask you what you did to help them.

There is another layer of poverty and destitution, not so squalid, but almost as helpless. You hear the incessant wailing for bread and clothes and fire. Their eves are sunken. Their cheekbones stand out. Their hands are damp with slow consumption. Their flesh is puffed up with dropsies. Their breath is like that of the charnel house. They hear the roar of the wheels of fashion overhead, and the gay laughter of men and maidens, and wonder why God gave to others so much and to them so little. Some of them thrust into an intidelity like that of the poor German girl who, when told in the midst of her wretchedness that Godlwas good, said: "No, no good God. Just look at me. No good God."

In this cluster of cities, whose cry of want I interpret, there are said to be, as far as I can figure it up from the reports, about 300,000 honest poor who are dependent upon individual, city, and state charities. If all their voices could come up at once, it would be a groan that would shake the foundations of the city, and bring all earth and heaven to the rescue. But, for the most part, it suffers unexpressed. It sits in silence, gnashing its teeth, and sucking the blood of its own arteries, waiting for the judgment day. Oh, I should not wonder if on that day it would be found out that some of us had some things that belonged to them; so out, and I walk the floor, and it makes me tremble to think that I have got to meet God. O sir, it's so hard for us. We have to work so, and then we have so much trouble, and then we are getting along so construction and see this weal little, thing growing. poorly; and see this wee little thing growing weaker and weaker; and then to think we are not getting nearer to God, but floating away from him. O sir, I do wish I was ready to die."

I should not wonder if they had a good deal

die."

I should not wonder if they had a good deal better time than we in the future, to make up for the fact that they had such a bad time here. It would be just like Jesus to say: "Come up and take the highest seats. You suffered with me on earth; now be glorified with me in heaven." O thou weeping one of Bethany! O thou dying one of the cross! Have mercy on the starving, freezing, homeless poor of these great cities!

I have preached this sermon for four or five practical reasons: Because I want you to know who are the uprooting classes of society. Because I want you to be more discriminating in your charities. Because I want your hearts open with generosity, and your hands open with charity. Because I want you to be made the sworn friends of all city evangelization, and all newsboys' lodging houses, and all Children's Aid societies, Dorcas societies, under the skilful manipulation of wives and mothers and sisters and daughters; let the spare garments of your wardrobes be fitted to the limbs of the wan and shivering. I should not wonder if that hat you give should not come back a jeweled coronet, or if that garment that you hand out from your wardrobe should mysteriously be whitened, and somehow wrought into the Savior's own robe, so in the last day he would run his hand over it, and say: "I was naked, and ye clothed me." That would be putting your garments to glorious uses.

But more than that, I have preached the

That would be putting your garments to glorious uses.

But more than that, I have preached the sermon because I thought in the contrast you would see how very kindly God had dealt with you, and I thought that thousands of you would go to your comfortable homes, and sit at your well-filled tables, and at the warm registers, and look at the fond faces of your children, and that then you would burst into tears at the review of God's goodness to you, and that you would go to your room and lock the door, and kneel down, and say: "O Lord, I have been an ingrate; make me thy child. O Lord, there are so many hungry and unclad and unsheltered today, I thank Thee that all my life Thou hast taken such good care of me. O Lord, there are so many sick and crippled children today, I thank Thee mine are well, some of them on earth, some of them in heaven. Thy goodness, O Lord, breaks me down. Take me once and forever. Sprinkled as I was many years ago at the altar, while my mother held me, now I consecrate my soul to Thee in a holier baptism of repenting tears.

holier baptism of repenting tears. For sinners, Lord, Thou cam'st to bleed, And I'm a sinner vile indeed; Lord, I believe Thy grace is free, O magnify that grace to me.

Unwise Taxation.

We must wake up to the fact that the most destructive power of our government, federal, state or municipal, is the power o The men who fix the amount of a tariff of tax, when they make it unequal, unjust and excessive, are more terrible than an army with banners-more to be dreaded than any other human agency of destruction.

In the north excessive taxation first drove capital and enterprise from Boston to New York, then from New York to the middle states, and now it is driving them from those states to Virginia, Georgia, Tennessee and Alabama.

It seems that some of the northern legislatures have the socialistic craze, and are making a blind and unreasonable war on capital.

Taxation in our complex society is assuming the proportions of a great problem, and it will require wise and just men to deal with it. In the south it is a matter of vital importance, as our legislation for the next few years will do much to make or mar our

Now, more than ever, we need our best men at the front-not the men who persistently clamor for leadership, but the men who are best fitted to lead. Especially do we need competent men, capable of handling the economic questions of the hour in every public council or position that has any con trol over the matter of taxation.

A system of taxation that will not oppress a poor man because he is helpless, nor rob a rich man because he is wealthy, a system that will make each bear his just share o the burden is what we need, and it will take all the wisdom, justice and moderation of our best minds to give it to us.

Taxation will either make us or break us

Between Two Enidemics. President Harrison never made a mor unmitigatedly bad and utterly indefensible appointment than that of the negro, James Hill, to the postmastership of Vicksburg.

The people of that historic city have held public meetings protesting against the appointment, but the president doubtless excted just such opposition. They are naturally indignant, but their indignation was probably anticipated and desired by the ad-

If the appointment is unjust and insulting ple of Vicksburg, it is positiv cruel to the negro. A telegram from Jackson states that Hill is very much disturbed over the action of the citizens of Vicksburg. He says that he was appointed postmaster of that place by Hayes, but did not take charge of the office on account of the yellow

The poor fellow should be warned by past ice. The fact that one epidemi kept him out of the postoffice should cause him to dread another. The visitation this time will probably not be yellow fever, but it may be one of those sudden and violent phases of "grip" occasionally extemporized in the southwest in the interests of the

There is reason to look for something of the sort. The Jackson telegram says that the general impression over the state is that no negro will ever be postmaster in Vicksburg. This is very significant. In such case the general impression of the people of Mississippi means something.

While every such appointment is an additional nail in the republican coffin, every thoughtful and patriotic American citizen will regret that the administration has adopted its present line of action. Even so exalted a personage as the president of the United States should show "a decent respect for the opinions of mankind."

Historical Lies.

From time to time we have called the attention of our readers to the importance of scrutinizing histories, and the war articles in northern magazines, before they are used in southern schools or placed in the hands of the rising generation.

False history is difficult to overthrow or steract when it once gets a start. The outh has been kept in the background for century or so simply on this account.

It will not do to dismiss the matter with the comforting reflection that the truth will prevail at last. Some faslehoods, after running for generations, are exposed only to reappear later in the guise of history.

A writer in the current number of The thern Methodist Quarterly Review disses the alleged "Blue Laws" of Connectient as a case in point. For a hundred years these laws have been quoted by newspapers and some historians. The majority of the and some historians. American people today believe that these laws once existed. And yet they are the feb-

As the writer in The Review puts it, one Samuel Peters, a tory preacher, who was briven out of Connecticut by the patriots, rent to England and took his revenge by riting what purported to be a history of a Connecticut colony. In this book amined the genuine records of Con-necticut have come to the concluon that the Rev. Samuel Peters was the most artistic and successful liar of modern times. He not only forged the absurd "Blue Laws," but he so muddled the minds of grave historians that in spite of all that can be said his falsehoods will not give place to the truth for a long time to come. This one incident shows how easy it is for false history to obtain a foothold. If the south is not ready to furnish the world with a genuine history, she should at least place a protest on record against each and every outside attempt to falsify the facts connected with the struggles and trials and progress of her people.

About Self-Education.

Mr. Charles A. Dana, in his admirable speech delivered at the fiftieth anniversary of The New York Tribune, made some in eresting remarks in regard to the education of young men. Mr. Dana talks in an interesting way on any theme, but the subject of the education of young men is of especial interest and importance.

He was a man of almost no education-inde of no education at all except what he had ac-quired for himself. The worst school that a man can be sent to, and the worst of all it is for a man of genius, is what is called a self-education There is no greater misfortune for a man of extra-ordinary talent than to be educated by himself, because he has of necessity a very poor school-master. There is nothing more advantageous to an able youth than to be thrown into contact with other youths in the conflicts of study and in the struggle for superiority in the school and in the other youths in the commercial study and in the struggle for superiority in the school and in the college. That was denied to Mr. Greeley. He knew no language but his own; but of that he possessed the most complete mastery. His wit and his humor flowed out in indiomatic forms of expression that were surprising and delightfu and that remain in the mind almost forever. His mind expanded as he went on in the pursuit of his professional labors.

Here Mr. Dana touches on a question that has been discussed with more or less earnestness ever since the necessity of education was acknowledged. It is a very large question—two large, indeed, to be disposed of in a speech or in an editorial article. It involves to a great extent all the controversies that are now under way in the civilized world as to the necessity of studying the lead languages, and it divides and branches off, so to speak, into numberless rills of discussion that have an interest of their own.

Mr. Dana's remarks are all the more suggestive because they seem to be thrown to gether in a haphazard way. From the conemplation of what he says about the nisfortune of self-education the mind is ound to turn to the career of Horace Greeley. Did the misfortune of self-education, of which he was the victim, hamper him in the pursuit of his chosen profession, or did it, in fact, help him to succeed? What is the distinction or the difference beween what is called self-education and the education that is gained in schools and colleges? It is all self-education in the end, and this is the important fact which we have from time to time tried to impress on the minds of the bright and ambitious boys who are writing to THE CONSTITUTION for helpful advice.

Of Horace Greeley, Mr. Dana says: "His mind expanded as he went on in the pursuit of his professional duties." means, of course, that Mr. Greely went on educating himself day after day, and this must be the experience of every successful The education of the schools and man. the colleges, no matter how far it may go, is merely elementary and preparatory. matter how liberal or expansive it may be, the purport of it all is to fit men and women for achieving success and enjoying the results thereof.

It would be futile to inquire whether a college education and a knowledge of foreign tongues would have made Horace Greeley a greater editor than he was. But it is pertinent to inquire whether he was hampered by the lack of these advantages and accomplishments. If he was hampered in the slighest degree the fact does not appear in his achievements. He was the most successful editor of his generation, and no man, no matter what his profession or his accomplishments, ever made a more profound impression on the living, breathing thought of his time. By means of his selfsuccess he became the most powerful editor of his time. There is a remark in the extract we have quoted from Mr. Dana's speech which is of special interest. "There is nothing more advantageous to an able youth," he says, "than to be thrown into contact with other youths in the conflicts of study and in the struggle for superiority in the school and in the college." This is a view worth considering, for it is this contact that gives the spur to ambition and stirs the mind to Nevertheless, there are in this great land of ours ambitious boys who will have but small school advantages, and who will lack all opportunity of going to college. To these THE CONSTITUTION desires to say now, as it has said before, that some of the most successful men in our history have had even smaller opportunities. Books are cheap and the human mind is strong. A self-education, such as Abraham Lincoln and Horace Greeley had, meant success for them, and self-education means success for any boy with the will and the mind.

METIME AGO THE CONSTITUTION and that Miss Powell, of this city, was engaged on new novel. The manuscript was forwarded last week to her New York publisher. Competent critics pronounce it her masterpiece, and predict that it will be well received in literary circles be issued early in the summer. Without attenting to give an outline of its plot, it may be a that some or its most thrilling incidents closely related to Atlanta's history.

REV. G. A. LOFTON, well known in Georgia the course of a recent lecture on "Newspapers" in Nashville, said: "The newspaper is ahead of electricity, books and telegraph. It is theigreatest of all things we have; it is the most potent agent through which the progress of the world is de-veloped; it enhances everything. What would the people of the present age do without the news-naper. Why, they couldn't get along without it. the people of the present age do without the new paper. Why, they couldn't get along without it it would stop the progress of the world. The it would stop the progress of the world. The newspaper is the greatest medium to find out and expose vice. What would become of society if vice were not exposed and brought before the moral world? The newspapers are the best things for the prevention of vice and immorality and are the best policemen we have. The newspaper has its evil as well as good, but it is an index to society; it is just what we make it; it is impossible for it to reform itself; it is vox populi; the preacher is in it, the merchant, the banker, the society belle, the prayer meeting—everything is in it. Reformation comes from the pulpit. No newspaper can reform itself. People must reform it. Thank God, the papers are better than they used to be."

they used to be."

Two Fashionable women, so-called society ladies, were arrested in New York the other da and carried to the station house, for being into icated on the street at midday. One was a wide boarding at the Fifth Avenue, and the other was arried. One of the 400 gave bond for them,

ETCHED AND SKETCHED.

One of the first duties of the legislature when it meets in July will be to accept by reso-lution the direct tax money refunded to Geor-gia under an act of the last congress.

The amount appropriated to be refunded t Georgia is $117.982.89. It is the amount of taxes levied and col-lected on lands in the state of Georgia by the United States government during the period between August 5, 1861, and the close of the war. The tax was levied for the purpose of carying on the war. Georgia's quota was $584,367, but the government was was gotten principally from Chatham, Flynn McIntosh and the other coast counties, where in some instances the lands were seized and sold for the taxes.

The act provides for the return of the money uired to turn it over to the parties, or their beirs, from whom it was collected, in the event they apply for it within six years. Otherwise it goes to the state. The chances are that all the money appropriated for Georgia will be claimed and that the state will get none of it However, it cannot be gotten save by a resolution of the legislature authorizing the gov ernor to receive it from the secretary of the treasury, and to distribute it to the partie from whom collected on the application of said parties.

There are, perhaps, 3,000 or 4,000 people in the state among whom the money will be divided. In the treasury department in Washington there is a record of the persons from whom the money was collected. Governor Northen will be furnished with a Northen will list of these persons, and, there-fore, he will have little trouble in distributing it to its rightful owners.

The total amount of this direct tax money refunded to the states by the last congress is $15,227,632, of which, of course, the northern states get the lion's share. New York, for instance, gets $2,213,330, Ohio gets $1,332,025, and Pennsylvania $1,654, 711, while of the southern states Alabama gets $22,520, Arkansas $154,701, of the southern Florida $4,766, Kentucky $606,641, Mississippi $113.324. North Carolina $377.452 South Car olina $222,396, and Texas $180,841. Tennessee is the only southern state that has yet re ceived its money. It got $392,004.

In speaking of this direct tax refund yesterday, Colonel Bob Hardeman said: "It was an outrage for congress to have re-funded this tax, which was clearly a legal tax, without refunding the cotton tax, which the supreme court has decided was clearly an illegal tax. But, of course, the refusal to refund was because the north would get none of the cotton tax. Why Georgia alone paid $11,897,094 of taxes on cotget none of the ton to the general government, and under the decision of the supreme court we are entitled to every dollar of it back. The only thing now needed is for congress to make an appropriation to refund it. Altogether the cotton tax refund it. Altogether the cotton tax unts to over $68,000,000, and of course the northern republicans, who are unfriendly ath, will always fight refunding it. But some day when sectionalism is buried, I feel confident we shall get the $11,000,000 which the supreme court says the government never had any right to collect and should be supremented to collect and should be supremented to the s therefore, refund to the states from which collected.

"Eleven million dollars in cash distributed over Georgia right now would things hum, so to speak. it will come sooner or later."

Of this cotton tax Georgia paid more than any of the other states. Alabama comes next in order. It paid $10,388,072, and if the tax is ever refunded will get that amount. Louisi-

And there is other money in the United States treasury which belongs to Georgia and the other southern states, and which, some day, will be paid. There is $10,000,000 obtained from the sale of "captured and aban doned property" seized by the union troops

The supreme court has time and again cided that this fund does not belong to the United States, but is the property of those from whom the property was taken, and that the government holds the fund simply as a trustee or the owners. The next congress, or the fifty-third, for then the democrats are quite certain to have the presidency, will pas an act providing for the owners of this prop erty to go before the court of claims and tablish their right to it. It seems an interesting coincidence, says the

New York World, that Mrs. "Stonewall" Jackson should be in New York arranging for the publication of the memoirs of her hu listinguished confederate general, at this time when the memoirs of Jefferson Davis by his widow have just appeared. The literary ability of the wives of great men is evider enerally known until they become widowed. Mrs. Grant, it is said, will soon have ready for the publisher what she knows about the life of her distinguished husband, and there has been a great deal of talk about Mrs. Sheridan's book on her gallant husband. The family of General Sherman still refuse to put his private papers in the market, but no se when that soldier has filled a great place in the history of his country, need surety to be discouraged in undertaking to ception Mrs. Davis's book has met with every where. Mrs. Jackson is a rather portly nodest and exceedingly intelligent little lady

If there is one man above all others who deserves to be called "popular," that man is George Collier. I don't suppose there is a man in Georgia who has more friends, and many have been the inquiries concerning the report that he had been shot.

The report is true, but thanks to his splen did constitution and to the careful treatment of old Dr. Bryant, every indication points to his speedy recovery. Whit Collier told me the story of the affair.

It seems that George had trouble with some of his workmen because he saw fit to hire some negro workmen in the construction of The Wigwam: Some of the white workmen deed their wages, and they received their stipend promptly without a question being asked as to the reason for their demand. "They wanted to be asked," said George, in letter, "and my seeming indifference didn't Late that evening one of the men-Freeman believe-went back|to The Wigwam and tol-Collier his amount was $10 short. The genia mine host of the prospective "first resort in Georgia" thought it funny Freeman should have failed to report the shortage earlier, but told him to come the next day, and if the footings of the pay roll showed a mistake o $10 he should have it. The next morning the man came again.

over the pay roll and explained the situation Freeman reiterated his demand, intimating in highly colored language that unless the "ter ner" was forthcoming then and there he would proceed to rub off a portion of that hillside with George Collier's carcass!

That was too much for George. The next ninute Freeman had collided with the brawn ist of his late employer, and he was sprawl ng down the hillside. Collier turned to go into the house, then looked back. There on his knees Freeman was looking at him over his pistol barrel. Collier attemped to jump back and that jump probably saved his life for a second later the trigger was pressed. The ball lodged in Mr. Collier's left arm, but the wound is not considered dangerous, and I wouldn't be surprised to see him walk in upon us at any time.

"Yon've heard of Geronimo-Yes, the bad Apache-well, did you know he was teaching Sunday school?"

The speaker was Major William H. Eckels His audience was a group of gentlemen in the Kimball rotunda Saturday evening. Of course everybody was surprised to learn that the murderous old Indian chief was teaching a Sunday school. "Well, it's a fact," continued the me at least General Crook says so, and I believe what he says. Not long ago that day was Sampson and the Philistines. Geronimo was very much interested in th tory. The Sunday school had been furnished with a blackboard, and it was Geronimo's habit illustrate his lectures by sketching upor this board. The Indians have great faith in the old man, and they believe in the Bible exactly as he says it is.

"So, on the day that Sampson and the Philistines were subjects, Geronimo proceeded to draw a picture of the scnee as he understood it.

"Taking a blue crayon, he drew a number of United States soldiers. He managed to make it appear that they were a frightened and panic-stricken crowd. They were fleeing for their lives.

Then, taking a red crayon, he sketched Sampson as an Apache warrior with his war paint on, his hair stuck full of eagle feathers his belt fringed with scalps, and a tomahawl

"Of course this was an eminently satisfac tory representation, so far as that audience concerned, and grunts of approval re warded Geronimo for his work."

"The Sons of Temperance," remarked Mr. W. G. Whidby, Saturday, "have lodges now at Jonesboro, Griffin, three in Atlanta, and one in Macon-making six in all. As soon as one more is organized, making seven in the state, we will organize a grand division. That won't be long, either, as two more lodges are being founded now, one in Gainesville and one in East Atlanta.

Hon. C. P. Goodyear, of Brunswick, was in Atlanta Saturday on a business trip. "The growth of Brunswick," he says, "has never been equaled in Georgia. It's pho enal. I had a talk with Cannon a few days ago and found that despite his ultra dudeism, he is a right sensible fellow. He has traveled over the world and knows pretty much all the peo ple who fare worth knowing. It was the for instance, who entertained Mr. and Mrs. Stanley while they were in New York. He lead the Four Hundred's balls, and was one of Jack Astor's attendants at his wedding, and all that of sculpture. The society papers suggest that his mother buys the models which he is sup-posed to turn out, but I have no doubt that it a canard. Cannon talked interestingly of matters as tistic and social. For instance, he suggests that the society people of New York-th upper tendom—are very much disgusted with Mr. Ward McAllister for writing the book he did, and that Mr. McAllister is chiefly of use in the management of the big public balls, where it is always difficult to get anybody to do the work. Among other things he told me was that he was with Madame DeBrassey, on a voyage to India, I believe, and he denies with the authority of the family the report of that great traveler's sup posed attempt at suicide.

GOSSIP IN THE STATE.

Mention was made in this column some time ago of the measure which is being advocated by The Calhoun County Courier—that of a law for the execution of all condemned criminals in Atlanta. The Courier is evidently in earnest about we would not for a moment, then, entertain or

We would not for a moment, then, entertain or advocate anything that would injure or detract from the magnificent city that so gloriously illustrates the Empire State of the South. We cannot see how such a law would or could possibly, in any way, hurt Atlanta. Of course, executions would take place in thin walls and privately, and, unless advertised, there would hardly be a ripple on the human sea of the city.

In addition to the reasons before given, we urge that such a law would destroy the baneful effect of making heroes and martyrs of condemned felons, and would take away that notoriety here-tofore given to those hung. Such a law, while relieving thinly populated sections from the baneful effects of the idleness of a large number of laborers "at the busy time," and the danger of rict, and the many evils that spring therefrom, would restrain the murderer's redihand, in many jinstances, as a thought of being manacled and dragged away from all friends and acquaintances, and carried to a place where a grim hangman would quietly and unfeelingly tie the knot and spring the death-trap, would rise before him.

The Waynesboro True Citizen has this interest ng gossip of Judge Diehl and old times in Georgia:

Ninety-nine years ago, when the circuit cour of the United States met in Augusta, among the presentments of the grand jury was this clause "We present as a grievance that the post is an directed to pass through the town of Waynesbor in the route to and from Savannah." This was long time before the day of railroads, and a line of stages ran from Augusta to Savannah via Waynesboro. It took two days to make the trip, and, be sides paying his board bill, the passenger had the pay as stage fare loicents a mile. Judge Dieh who died only last year, and was for a lon number of years the ordinary and cleriof the superior court of Jefferson county in his younger days, was one of the stage. of the superior court of Jefferson cour his younger days, was one of the s drivers on this line, and the blast of his many a time notified the good people of Way bore that the great event of the day—the arr of the stage—was on hand. In those days twere four and sometimes six horses to every scoach, and relays were had every fifteen or twenty. miles. The drivers took great pride in cracking their whips and winding their horns, and every-body would turn out to see the stage as it passed, and perhaps pick up some item of news.

The admission to the bar of John H. Kinckle, the first colored attorney Chatham county has ever had, has caused considerable comment among the Savannah lawyers. Over half a century ago four brainy, stalwart, moral young men of New England settled in Georgia. They were the Wadleys, of Brentwood, N. H.—William, David, Moses and Dole, and they left their mark on the state. Their English as cestors were the first settlers of New England, a far back as 1630. They gave brave revolutionar soldiers to the cause of independence, some fighting at Bunker Hill. The homestead in which these manly boys were born, built in 1810, was a fine residence for the country house of that day William was born in 1813, and died in 1882; David

William was born in 1813, and died in 1882; David in 1819, and died in 1883; Moses in 1822, and died in 1887, and Dole in 1824, has just died at Portamouth, N. H., April 10, 1891.

William became the railway genius of the south, creating the large Central railroad system and Ocean Steamship Company. The three other brothers became great lumber-mill manufacturers and lumber dealers, besides large railroad contractors, building up fortunes, and all leaving a spotiess repute. The three enterprising men revolutionized the sawmill business and railmen revolutionized the sawmill business and rail-road building by first sawing heavy bridge timbe, which before had been hewn, thus broadening the vast lumber industry of the south. All were men of large conceptions, financial sagacity, rare bus-iness judgment and thorough integrity. They all married fine and estimable wives, and have left children who are preserving unsullied their parchildren who lare preserving unsullied their parents' rare reputation.

AT THE CHURCHES.

DE, STRICKLER PREACHES TO THE

Are Attended by Large Congregations
-Interesting Services Throughout.

Rev. Dr. Strickler preached a special sermo the veterans yesterday morning.

The beautiful Central Presbyterian church was crowded to overflowing, and the discourse was listened to with profoundest attention. Special accommodations were reserved for the veterans, who formed at their hall on Broad street and marched in a body to the church. As the line passed along the streets it gathered strength, reinforcements of old warors joining the column at every corner. The impressiveness of the service was enhanced by the music, prepared for the occa-aon—music that inspired and stirred the souls of the brave old soldiers who, having signed their parole in the wars of men, were marching on in faithful phalanx to join the legions of aranise; music that lifted up the hearts of the congregation in gladness and praise to God for his mercies and grace. After prayer by Rev. D. Craig Dr. Strickler took his text from the third verse of the second chapter of Second Timothy.

"Thou, therefore, endure hardness, as a good soldier of Jesus Christ." The preacher spoke of the conflicts between nations, and the conflict of righteousness and sin. The old soldiers he addressed he said were no longer battling with men, but were engaged in that greater conflict. The whole world was fighting the battle, and every man was enlisted on one side or the other.

Either he fought under the gracious banner of Christ, or was arrayed on the other side, op posing Him and opposing themselves.

Dr. Strickler told of the incomparable ssings awaiting in the kingdom of Christ for those who received His salvation, and drew a beautiful picture of the eternal happiness of the faithful soldier.

He said of course the benefit of salvation could not be gained without enlisting in the cause of Christ any more than we can enjoy the beauties of the sun without seeing, or the benefit of the air without breathing it. The discourse was concluded by an eloquent appeal to the old soldiers who had not already done so, to make haste and align themselves under the banner of Christ and gain happiness in the world to come. At the First Baptist Church.

Dr. Hawthorne preached a powerful and eloquent Bermon yesterday morning, which was listened to with profound attention by a large congregation. The subject selected was, "Christ With Us," from the text, "So I am with you always, even unto the end of the world." Matthew 28:20.
"Christ is God and God is everywhere," said the matter. "In this same he is an truly with this pastor. "In this sense he is as truly with the wicked as with the righteous. He is as much the companion of the roving bandit as he is of the Christian pilgrim. In what peculiar sense, then, is he with his people? He is with those whose piritual faculties are open, whose spiritual sensibilities are quickened so that they recognize his presence. He is with those who hold communion He is with those who hold communion presence. He is with those with him by faith.

"The benefits which we derive from having Christ with us:

1. "It frees us from a sense of condemnation, there is no condemnation to them that are with Christ Jesus."

It is no condemnation to them that are with Christ Jesus."

There is a solution of the condemnation to the cond

there is no condemnation to them that are with Christ Jesus."

2. "Christ with us gives us rest from the craving of an unsatisfied spirit. There is a hunger of the soul that is just as real as any physical hunger, and far more profound. Nothing but God in Christ satisfies this hunger.

3. "Christ with us is our strength and support amid the cares and temptations of life. We need Christ, not so much in the sick chamber or in the sanctuary of prayer, as in the stock market, the political caucus and at the ballot box.

4. "Christ with us frees us from fear of coming eyils. It inspires us to say, The Lord is my shepherd, I shall not want."

The church was packed with people. The singin was particularly good. The sermon was on "Happiness." Sir William Hamilton and Thomas Carlyle were called to the witness stand; then Solomon. Solomon was characterized as an oriental king who had drained every cup of human, pleasure to its dregs. Satiated with wholesale sin, to which his conscience was no barrier, he cried: "Vanity of vanities! All is vanity!" To our question. "What is happinesse?" barrier, he cried: "Vanity of vanities! All is vanity!" To our question, "What is happiness?" he replies: "Whose trusteth in the Lord, happy is he." Firm trust in the providence of God is the balance wheel that makes the life calm, notwithstanding its necessary disappointments and tears. Mr. Barrett closed his sermon with a description of his ascent of the Torghetten, in the Arctic ocean. There is a natural tunnel through the mountain. Below, from the sea, it looks like a far-off window; but when it is reached by painful climbing, you stand in the tunnel through which streams the light of the midnight sun. So is faith to him who first sees it as a thing above him, beyond him, and at last stands within it, enswathed by its

and at last stands within it, enswathed by its light, and looking out upon the sea that knows no night.

Mr. Barrett announced that beginning next Bunday night, he would deliver ten lectures on "The Ten Greatest Men." At the First Methodist.

Dr. Anderson spoke yesterday upon the duties and needs of men.

Membership, said he, in the church militant is becessary for entrance into the church triumphant. What is particularly desired is for a man to be upright; when he is measured by the plumb line of the Creator, he should be found to be erect. He should be penitent, walk with God, do good and work mercy.

Many incidents were mentioned and illustra-tions used to make clear and forcible the various points, and the sermon was greatly enjoyed.

At Trinity. Dr. Walker Lewis took as a text Romans 1., 14-15, and delivered a splendid sermon on "Missionary Work."

debt. The man who, however, is not spiritually in debt is the most uncomfortable, because he has made no investment in the gospel. There are several considerations to prompt our receiving of the gospel. Christ commands us to give of the to all. One may be saved without it, but having it, cannot unless following its

The Eachings.

Again, we owe it to ourselves to pay this debt. In such a way only, can we maintain our character in this world and retain the treasures of grace we have in the gospel.

Commercial payments of debt reduce capital, the spiritual increase it.

We ought to pay this, furthermore, because we are the trustees of the unsaved. All not needed for maintainance of self and not drawn off necessarily is thieved. They need it, and if the gospel is of worth and comfort to us, it is surely so to them.

The way in which it may be conveyed is by preaching, i. e., when a few men are called unon to preach the gospel. Note it is only men. The constitution of the early church, the call of the spottles, the mission of i"the seventy," and the word of God dictate that. Most women and all men can send it. All men and all women can lire up to it.

Before services concluded, about $1,600 was donated by the large congregation present for missionary purposes.

At the Third Presbyterian. Dr. Holderby discoursed eloquently yesterday morning from Ephesians, Iv., 14-15. The subject was, "God's family in heaven and on earth."

The sermon was subdivided into: 1. Of whom this family is composed. 2. Terms of memberation.

Regarding the former, God is the father and bead of the family. To this angels belong. Man was also introduced into it. A part of the family as also introduced into it. A part of the family revolted and was thrust out, never to be reintated. Man also rebelled against God, but has been received again by the sacrifice of Christ, the eiger brother. The family is an illustrious case, and all the good and great belong to it. It is loyal, and never to be broken up.

As to the second head, regeneration is required. Sinful man is adopted into the family.

The new house of worship will be completed in about five weeks, and on the first of June appropriate dedication exercises will be held.

At the First Presbyterian At the First Presbyterian.

The sermon of Dr. E. H. Barnett yesterday was in excellent one. The text was James 1, 21, "Receive with meekness the engrafted word which is able to save your souls."

The Bible is to be viewed through the intellect, inscience, heart and will, and then be acted is the absolute truth, is quick and powerful, the words are the words of Christ, and save us from sin, weakness, sorrow and death. It claims divine origin, and substantiates such claims. The First Presbyterian is in a flourishing condi-tion. At a report given of its condition the past week, among other significant items, it was shown that over $15,000 had been contributed last year.

At St. Philip's. At St. Philip's.

The church was crowded yesterday at both services. Rev. Mr. Davis, of Athens, Ga., preached morning and evening. The music was notably fine. St. Philip's choir, as recently reorganized, is pronounced one of the best choirs in the south. A special feature of the musical programme at the morning service was the offertory—a bassi solo by Mr. LeClair, with quartette accompaniment.

accompaniment.

The subject of the evening sermon was, "Self-love and Selfishness, or Proper and Improper Self-love." Dr. Davis's discourse was a forcible and eloquent effort.

The sermon at the forenoon service was equally able and scholarly.

Dr. Mayo at the Unitarian Church.

Dr. Mayo, of Boston, occupied the pulpit of the church of Our Father yesterday, morning and vening.
In the evening he lectured upon the subject, Education in the South." In the evening he lectured upon the subject, "Education in the South."

Dr. Mayo is thoroughly acquainted with this subject in its practical beggings. He compared the educational statistics of the sixteen southern states with the corresponding figures for the north and east. Maine, leading figures for the north and east Maine, leading all the states in the union in the matter of education, gives eight months' schooling each year to practically 100 per cent, or all, of its children. The southern states, taking an average, gives less than 50 per cent of their children schooling for four months. Chicago alone appropriates more money for education than any southern state. The figures showing the comparative illiteracy are equally striking. This shows the great educational work to be done in the south. The weak point in the southern system is the country school. The fact that so large a percentage of the southern population live in the open country is one great reason why so small a per cent are educated. The schools reach only about one-half of the children between the ages of six and fourteen. Another reason for the disparity between this and other sections is a corresponding difference in the wealth of the sections. The people of the south pay as large a tax percentage upon their property for education as the people of Maine. Dr. Mayo showed that the advance of Massachusetts in the matter of education dates from the educational revival of fifty years ago, which was largely the work of one man. Such a revival, he says, is needed here now.

At the Second Baptist church there was a large congregation, who listened attentively to an elo-quent sermon by the pastor. The text selected by Dr. McDonald was, "For their sakes I sanctify myself," John 17:19, from which the subject of the sermon, "The Consecration of Christ," was

How About This?—Saturday a farmer from the country called at this office with a blank application for a pension for the widow of a confederate soldier, from the United States government. The application had been partially filled out, and it showed that one Peter O'Farrell, attorney at law, No. 1319, F street N. W., Washington, D. C., beinged that he could secure the pension if the anclaimed that he could secure the pension if the applicant would return the application properly filled out with a fee of $1.

The question arises, is this nota scheme to dupe the widows of confederate soldiers and get a fee of $1 from them, with no return whatever? The matter will probably be investigated by the authorities and thoroughly ventilated.

ATTENDED BY A LARGE NUMBER OF PROPIE,

Dr. Boring's Remains Buried at Westview Death of a Young Englishman.

The funeral services of Dr. John M. Boring ook place yesterday at the Walker street

The church was crowded with friends, and others who, though not personally acquainted with the venerable man over whose body the last act of love and respect was to be per-formed, yet desired to show their regard for him, who for years had been identified with the history of their home.

Atlanta Lodge No. 59 of Free and Accepted Masons had charge of the body, and by invitation the members of other lodges attended Dr. Boring had been a Mason for fifty years and never, perhaps, on a funeral occasion in Atlanta, has there been so large an attendance of the members of this ancient order.

Thomas McLaren, a white man about fifty years of age, was killed on the Western and Atlantic road yesterday morning.

He was walking along the track toward the city about 5 o'clock in the morning, when an incoming freight ran upon him at the five-mile rost.

He was a moulder by trade and has a brother living in St. Louis. A man who was traveling with him informed the police of this brother's residence, and he was telegraphed to.
Last night a reply was received directing that the body be buried here, as the brother was not able to bear the expense of his removal to St. Louis.

Coroner Davis held an inquest. The verdict relieved the railroad company of blame.

absolutely untrue. I have nothing to do with the candidacy of Colonel Searcy, nor have I a combination with any other candidate."

Continuing, he gives what seems to be some very interesting information. 'My candidacy," he says, "can not be a surprise to my friends in Atlanta, because they were the ones who urged me to make the race I would not consent to the use of my name until I was assured that Brother Livingston would not make the race. I stated positively that I would not make the race if Brother Livingston desired re-election. Brother Liv-ingston's friends urged me to make the race for the expressed reasons: 1. That Living ston was not and would not be in the race 2. That I was and had been the friend and supporter of Livingston and the state organ, and, therefore, my election as their friend would be their endorsement. I fully counted on the support of both Brother Livingston and Harry Brown, as my candidacy was friendly to both of them, and could not possibly be con strued into a fight on either of them."

AVIER TEN TEARS,

Spelman Seminary Colebrates the Anniversary of its Foundation.

In honor of the decennial anniversary of its organization, Spelman seminary held very interesting exercises yesterday afternoon.

The spacious hall was prettily docorated for the occasion, and on the stage sat Dr. Henry McDonald, Dr. Harvey Hatcher, Dr. Samuel Graves, Mr. W. H. Crawford, Dr. L. Parks and Dr. W. P. Thirkield behind a wilderness of flowers and shrubbery.

of flowers and shrubbery.

Dr. McDonald acted as master of caremo nies, and after devotional services in which the school sang hymns in a manner indicating excellent training, he took as a text, Nehemiah, vi, 16, and gave a splendid talk.

The thread of the discourse was the acknowledgement of God's presiding over the the destinies of man. Special attention was paid to Spelman, and the gratitude mentioned that the students thereof owed for the success that the students thereof owed for the success achieved.

"Let your gratitude," said Dr. McDonald, "not be the transient ebullition of a feeling of debt, which passes away as the morning dew, but be evidenced by deeds, by sacrifices, by noble aspirations, and be perpetual."

The doctor then read the history and growth of the institution. The matter briefly was.

Early in April, 1881, Rev. Frank Quarles, pastor of the Friendship Baptist church, conceived the idea of establishing a school for colored girls and women in Atlanta. At about this time Miss S. B. Packard and Miss H. E. Giles, prominent teachers of the north, H. E. Giles, prominent teachers of the north, had been visiting the south for just such a purpose, and coming to Atlanta, saw a promising field. From this Spelman dates its

In the same month the school was opened in the basement of the Friendship church, with eleven pupils enrolled and two teachers. Within three months the number of pupils increased to eighty. As the result of arduous, earnest work, the fall term found 173 students.

ever, ended his unfinished task, and others took it up with the result so well known. Because of the liberal donation of John D. Rockefeller, the institution was named Spelman, in honor of Mrs. Rockefeller's father, who was such a friend of the colored people.

The school now includes four courses, with an attendance of 834 pupils and thirty-four teachers. Its motto is, "Our whole school for Christ," and, judging from results, it is one of the most important institutions Atlanta can boast of. The celebration closed with prayer by Mr. W. H. Crawford.

A NEW SUNDAY SCHOOL. The Beginning of Christian Work at Green-Captain E. M. Roberts, superintendent for the school district including the counties of Fulton, Clayton and DeKalb, organized a new Sunday school yesterday morning.

Its location is at Greenwood, the new su-burb on the Howell's mill road, near the Van Winkle shops.

The lot was donated by Dr. Green and Mr. Bob Horton. The school began with thirty-four attendants and will be called the "Greenwood Union Sunday school." Mr. Willie Cawhern was elected superintendent, and Miss Carrie S. Tarflinger secretary and

DANGEROUS USE OF STRONG PURGATIVES.

Most pills, purgatives and Bitter waters which act quickly upon the bowels, irritate and often destroy the mucous lining of the stomach and bowels. Indeed their carthartic action is directly caused by the irritation which they produce. Their action should be soothing and stimulating instead of irritating. A continued use of such remedies produces chronic inflammation of the stomach and bowels. This often ends in a dangerous disease. The use of the genuine imported Carlsbad Sprudel Salt is highly recommended as an aperient, laxative and diuretic, because its action is due solely to its solvent and stimulating properties. It soothes and allays inflammation, and is, therefore, much preferable to all strong purgatives, pills and Bitter waters.

Beware of imitations. Dr. Toboldt's lecture on Carlsbad Sprudel Salt and pamphlets mailed free. Eisner & Mendelson Co., sole agents, 6 Barclay street, New York.

The result is now a magnificent building of brick, stone and corru-gated iron, which is not only tasteful but substantial in design and finish.

There are eight fire plugs in the building with hose attached, and there are water main leading through all the different sections. A new three-story building in front, which is now in progress of construction, will be used as

A Distributing Point.

Mules and horses from Missouri, Kansas, Illinois, Indiana and Tennessee, are shipped to this great central location to be distributed to every point in the south. The company does a strictly wholesale business, and their stables are headquarters for buyerspall over the south. Realizing, about a year ago, that their stables,

A company was formed with a capital stock of $150,000, and the right to increase to $500,000.

The board of directors elected were Messrs.

T. R. Brady, president and general manager.

T. B. Brady, president and general manager; John A. Miller, C. H. Miller, vice president; E. P. Black, J. L. Dickey and George M. Brown.

EXPOSITION MATTERS.

NO WILD WEST, BUT SOMETHING NEW AND BETTER

The Best Races Ever Witnessed in Georgia. Big Military Prizes-Countles Applying for Space.

October 19. November 7.

Those are the exposition dates.

"The premium list," said President Wylle Saturday, "is nearly completed now. We are offering more premiums and larger ones than ever before. The mineral, agricultural and forest exhibits will be the finest ever seen in Georgia, and probably in the south. Five counties have already applied for space and been assigned. They are Bartow, Floyd, Troup, Fulton and Whitfield. Already, too, quite a number of the exhibitors have been assigned space for machinery, manufactories

"No, we won't have the wild west show this year. We are corresponding now about the special attractions. One proposition is for the 'Bombardment of Vers Cruz,' a spectacular pyrotechnic performance for night. Another is Achille Philion, the equilibrist, said to be the finest in the world.

"Another thing we are thinking of bringing is Paul M. Atkinson's 'Battle of Atlanta.'
That is said to be very fine. Still another is the Girls' Orchestra and Japanese village combination. We are going to close a contract very soon now for our spe cial attractions, in order to get the best.

"The military features alone will bring many thousand people to Atlanta. We are paying special attention to that.
"A large number of distinguished men will be brought here as guests and speakers.

"The racing will be far in advance of thing ever seen before in Georgia. The distribution of the distribut rectors have come to the conclusion that fine racing would be a great attraction, and the way to make money at it is to spend money at it. Ten people would go to see a first-class

race, where not one would go to see a scrub race. But even if we lose money at it we are going to have a lot of fine horses here, and the best races ever seen in Georgia.' "We are making," continued President Wylie, "a number of improvements upon the grounds and buildings. Additional space is being provided for exhibits.

"The remark I made about racing applies generally. The way to make money at a thing of this sort is to spend money—big premiums and a heap of them, no chestnuts everything new and in first-class shape, noth ing cheap or shoddy about it. We are spending a great deal more money on the exposition than ever before. It's going to be the finest ever held in the south."

PATTI MEETS GLADSTONE.

It recently happened that Mr. Gladstone and Madame Pattl were visiting Edinburgh at the same time, and the great artist met the great statesman. A question of the greatest importance to the one as a singer and the other as an orator, was discussed at some length by them—the proper management and preservation of the voice. It was agreed between them that the Soden Pastilles (troches) were of the greatest benefit to them, not only as a voice tonic but as a remedy for coughs, colds and hoarseness. Sufferers from asthma and diseases of the throat and lungs will also find them of the greatest service. Price 50
